He then stopped and stated "That's enough for the first time." then stated "That's the last time." then zipped his pants up and started to leave, telling the defendant he was going to tell his mother. The defendant told him not to tell and he would not do it again. further related that prior to this incident, the defendant had fondled his privates on the outside of his clothing three different times at the defendant's home and once on the motorcycle trail they always used. He stated the defendant told him in California, he choked a boy who was going to tell on him; that he then brought him back to life and took him to a hospital and got caught. He said for this reason, he was afraid not to submit to the defendant and was also afraid to tell on him. stated he had slept in a hidden room in the attic of Gregory Green's house while he was a runaway, and on that occasion, Gregory Green had asked him to do the same thing. He further stated on a weekend afternoon toward the end of September, 1976, he had gone to Gregory Green's home. At this time, the defendant told him to come into the bedroom to look at some wooden cars. The defendant asked him if he wanted one of them and at this time started trying to unzip pants. kept fighting him off and the defendant succeeded in unzipping his pants, took his penis from his pants and placed it in his mouth for about 20 seconds. stated he pulled it out and zipped up his pants because he didn't want him to do it. The defendant asked him to do the same for him. He refused and went home. further stated that the defendant keeps waiting for him on corners near his home and at school and motions for him to come with him. He again stated he is afraid of the defendant. also related some of the other members of the baseball team, namely, had been physically involved with Gregory Green.

On January 21, 1977, at 11:00 AM, Officer Tom Waldron conducted an interview with M/W/10, in the presence of his mother, in the Juvenile Section of the Flint Police Department. related he had met Gregory Green in June of 1976, as Gregory was the manager of their baseball team. Sometime during the earlier part of July, Gregory Green purchased a small mini-motorcycle and started giving the boys in the neighborhood rides behind Northwestern High School. related he went behind Northwestern High School on many occasions with Gregory Green, and While at the rear of Northwestern, Gregory Green placed his mouth on penis on approximately 10 different occasions. also related Gregory Green would have the boys hold onto his penis and have touch each others penis. further related Gregory would have place their mouths on Gregory Green and other times, he would "jack off and sperm" in front of them. In further questioning he denied ever placing his mouth on Gregory Green's penis or allowing Gregory Green to place his penis in anus as Gregory often requested. further related he observed Gregory Green "sperm" in mouth on one occasion to the rear of Northwestern High School. further related he felt some of the things they were doing was "wrong" and that he quit being around Gregory Green about the 1st of September. This interview was then terminated and left with [redacted] related on one occasion, Gregory Greene took himself, [redacted], a boy named [redacted] and [redacted] to a drive-in movie on Corunna Road. While at the movie, Gregory Greene had oral contact with the penis of [redacted]. After completing this act, Gregory Greene covered his penis with vaseline and had anal intercourse with the same three boys. [redacted] stated around Thanksgiving he quit having any further contact with Gregory Greene. This interview was then terminated.

On January 24, 1977, at 11:00 AM, a second interview was conducted with [redacted] in the presence of his mother, [redacted] in the Juvenile Bureau by Officer Tom Waldron. During this interview, [redacted] related much of the earlier information given in the interview with Sgt. On one occasion, while [redacted] had his mouth on Gregory Greene's penis; Gregory Greene had a climax. [redacted] also related Greg had bragged to him about having sexual relations with over 100 young boys. [redacted] also stated on one occasion, the defendant, often putting vaseline on his penis, inserted it into [redacted] anus, but it hurt so much that he, [redacted] would not let Gregory do it again. [redacted] further stated he was very frightened by Gregory as Gregory had taken nude Polaroid photographs of many of the boys and had threatened to show them if any of the complainants told their parents what had occurred. This interview was then terminated.

SUPPLEMENT TO CIRCUIT COURT HISTORY

DEFENDANT: GREGORY GREENE,
Compl. #: #1892
CHARGE: Criminal Sexual Conduct 1st Degree

On January 25, 1977, Officer Tom Waldron of the Flint Police Department presented Assistant Prosecutor Lenore Ferber with the prepared Circuit Court History. After reviewing the court history, Ms. Ferber issued the Order for Warrant charging Gregory W. Greene with 3 counts of Criminal Sexual Conduct 1st Degree on Complaints #1571, #1891, #1892.

On January 25, 1977, at approximately 2:00 PM, the complainants on these aforementioned complaints, being met Officer Waldron at Judge Shaker's courtroom. At this time, Judge Shaker swore the complainants and signed the warrants against Gregory Greene.

Miller, which he stated he understood and waived. The defendant stated that he had returned to Flint, Michigan, approximately February 14, 1976, after spending approximately 5 years in the State of California. He stated that while living in Orange County, California, he had been arrested on a marijuana charge and also for Criminal Sexual Conduct charges, approximately 45 counts, and after pleading guilty to one count, had spent 6 months in the Orange County Jail and one year in the Patton State Mental Hospital in Patton, California; being released from that institution on or about January 15, 1976. He further stated he is currently serving a 5 year probationary period for that offense and David Whitter, Genesee County Adult Probation, is currently his probation officer. In the middle of May, 1976, he obtained employment at the K-Mart Store on Belsay Road as a third shift custodian, but has since been discharged from that place of employment. In June of 1976, he became involved as the manager of a Little League baseball team in the area of his home at _____. He stated in June of 1976, he purchased a 125cc Yamaha from the Yamaha dealer in Flushing, which he financed through Citizens Bank. In August or September, he purchased a 1974 Chevrolet van from Al Serra Chevrolet, which was also financed through Citizens Bank. He further stated that since May of 1976, he has seen his counselor, Ron Mathews, of the Genesee County Mental Health Department, approximately twice a week; this being a mandatory part of his California probation. The defendant, Gregory Greene, stated he became acquainted with the complainant, _____ M/W/12 (Compl. #1571) through the Little League baseball team in June. He stated he became sexually involved with him in July and had approximately 5 to 10 different sexual involvements with this boy. The last time being somewhere in November. He stated the sexual involvement consisted of mutual oral copulation and that he had attempted anal intercourse, but that [redacted] was found to be too small. He further stated he engaged in mutual oral copulation with [redacted] during the months of July and August, but did not know on how many occasions. Mr. Greene related that most of these offenses had occurred in his home at [redacted]; more specifically in his bedroom, but then on occasion, some of these acts had occurred on the bike trail behind Northwestern High School where he took the boys for rides on his motorcycle and some of the acts had occurred in his van. He stated that he had mutual oral copulation with [redacted] M/W/12 (Compl. #1892) at least 10 times during the period from June until through the Christmas vacation of 1976. Upon completing this interview with Gregory W. Greene, he was lodged in the Flint City Jail by Officer Tom Waldron.

A western hunting knife, which was located above the visor in Mr. Greene's van, and a envelope with the inscription "You can fool your brothers by pretending you're going into the school by the cafeteria. Put your hood up and walk over to the church," which was taken from Mr. Greene's person was turned in by Officer Waldron on Property Receipt #64680. Mr. Greene related he had written this note with the intention of getting it to [redacted]

Sam...I must be getting brain dead from these cases as nothing about your above post even seems real... Now we know the MSP were present at the local hearing. In the courtroom, says he remembers meeting Gray, the State Police sergeant who had announced plans to revisit the case in 2005. After shaking hands, says Gray remarked to him, "You know, we had a state task force on this for 30 some years and I can't believe a neighbor boy solved it." Gray refused to comment for this story"....Now we all know the Wayne County Prosecutor and Cory Williams had said- Ted was the Occk -and this was after they knew about Busch....and I know for a fact- That even after the Ted deal blew up in their faces...They -Cory and The Task Force were working on differant suspects -unrelated to Busch....There is just something completely wrong-with Busch as a suspect.....

Reasoning-That is a good Theory...However the very lack of forensic material that they were able to gather at the crime scenes...would rule out multiple killers... unless they have a lot of goodies in that Big Garbage Bag, sucked from the heating vents...or if the Dog did it...by accident

OAKLAND COUNTY CHILD KILLINGS

FINDING TIMMY' S KILLER

KING FAMILY BELIEVES THEY KNOW WHO KILLED 11-YEAR-OLD IN 1977, BUT POLICE ARE SLOW TO ACT

BY MARNEY RICH KEENAN THE DETROIT NEWS

For 32 years, Timmy King's family has been waiting for the truth. Who abducted, molested and murdered their 11-year-old son and three other children during a 13-month reign of terror that besieged Oakland County between February 1976 and March 1977?

Timmy King was the last victim of the infamous Oakland County Child Killer. He was abducted and held for six days before his body was found on the side of a road, his orange skateboard tossed nearby like an afterthought.

No one has ever been charged with the killings, although numerous suspects have been investigated.

who told you first?

Now the King family believes they know who the killer is: A suspected Bloomfield Township pedophile who police had questioned three weeks before their boy's murder. But they are frustrated that the task force empowered to probe the cold case is sitting on what they say is information that could close the case once and for all.

"We want to know why we are being stonewalled," says Barry King, the victim's 78-year-old father. Timmy's mother, Marian, died in 2004.

The Kings say their repeated requests to the Michigan State Police for information on recent developments in the case have gone unanswered. Previously scheduled meetings have been postponed twice, although another meeting with some task force members has been scheduled for Tuesday.

WHAT EVIDENCE - who lost - who told you this?

"We want some justice for the victims. We've been told evidence is apparently lost; tests were supposedly conducted, but there have been no results for over a year. We never get a straight story," says Timmy's brother Chris King, 48, of Huntington Woods.

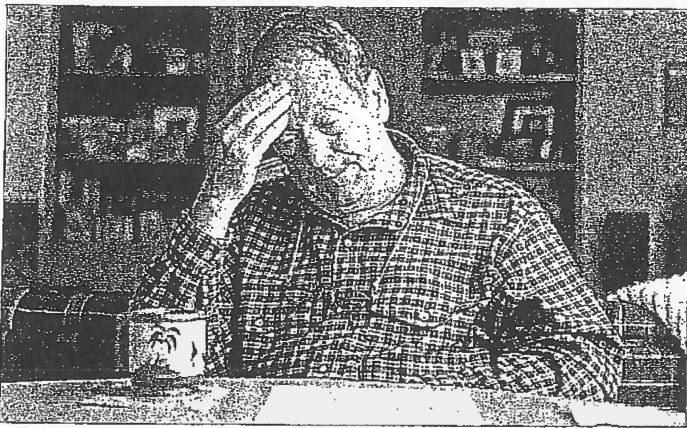

The King family believes that movement on the Please see Timmy, Page 6A case has been hampered by disputes among law enforcement agencies involved in the task force investigation. Specifically, they believe how to proceed has created a schism between the Michigan State Police and the other agencies: the Livonia Police Department and the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office.

"There has been a lot of frustration felt by the Kings over the past couple of weeks," said State Police Capt. Harold Love, second district commander in charge of Southeast Michigan, which oversees the task force. Love said meetings with the Kings had to be rescheduled due to some "issues" within the task force.

"I don't blame them at all. We had some issues within the task force as far as where information came from and what information was out there and things people were saying and we needed to get the task force all on the same page."

But the Kings say they've waited long enough.

"Those four little kids deserve far better than what they've gotten from the MSP," says Timmy's only sister, Cathy Broad, 50, of Naperville, Ill.

"Their actions are either gross incompetence or very dirty dealings or both."

Neither answer is very reassuring."

A name under wraps

No one could have predicted the course of events that unearthed this latest break in the case. In part, that's because it didn't come from dogged detective work but from an ex-neighbor who'd grown up across the street from the King family. The neighbor's information was relayed to Chris King in the summer of 2006. Later that same year, the Wayne County prosecutor's office filed an investigative subpoena compelling a polygraph examiner to testify before Wayne County Circuit Judge Timothy Kenny about the Timmy King killing. NOT UNTIL Aug 2007 ONE YEAR LATER

By November 2007, polygrapher Lawrence Wasser was ordered under oath to produce a name. The transcripts are sealed, but the Kings say they were told by Cory Williams, a now-retired Livonia Police detective who was investigating the case, that Wasser revealed the name Chris Busch as a suspect in the King slaying. FALSE

Busch's name had been circulating for years on Internet blogs and among those familiar with the notorious unsolved child murder cases and the nationwide child pornography rings of the 1970s. years - by whom?

Still, the discovery was numbing: Christopher Brian Busch was the son of Harold Lee Busch, executive financial director for General Motors, and Elsie Busch, both now deceased. The family lived in the Bloomfield Village neighborhood of Bloomfield Township from 1970-79. Bloomfield Township Police records show Busch committed suicide in the home on Nov. 20, 1978, a year after the child killings stopped. His body was cremated two days later. who told you this

Six months later, the house was sold.

"My family and I think Chris Busch killed Tim," says Barry King. Why?

"Conventional wisdom at the time dictated it was much easier to think there is some type of evil person who lives far away," says Chris King. "It's almost inconceivable to think somebody from the village could do this. But what's really heartbreaking is that Busch was arrested, charged and should have been in jail many times over." Cory!

A family torn apart

On March 16, 1977, Timmy, a straight-A student in sixth grade at Adams Elementary, left his home on Yorkshire Drive in Birmingham at 8:15 p.m. with his skateboard. Timmy was the youngest of Barry and Marian King's children, brother to Cathy, Chris, and Mark. He borrowed 30 cents from his sister and left home to buy candy at Hunter-Maple Pharmacy in a shopping center that borders Woodward Avenue and Maple Road.

Chris King was 16 at the time. When he came home from baby-sitting that night, there were police cars in the driveway and in front of his house. His parents returned home from dinner to discover Timmy missing. They had dined at Peabody's Restaurant, less than 500 feet from where Timmy was last seen.

Chris drove with his mother to search for his brother at a friend's house. "The house was dark, pitch black," he remembers. "I said, 'Mom, I'll just go and knock on the door anyway.' And she said, 'No, he's not there.' And then she started crying. And I knew she was right." From that moment on, he says, "It was horrible because you knew what was going on. The clock was ticking."

Six days later, Timmy's still warm, fully clothed body was found beside Gill Road near Eight Mile in Livonia. He had been suffocated. An autopsy revealed signs of sexual abuse and there were marks around his wrists and ankles suggesting he had been tied. His body was strikingly clean, as were his clothes.

The bodies of three other victims also were cleaned and scrubbed, according to the medical examiner. Mark Stebbins, 12, of Ferndale was found Feb.

19, 1976, in a parking lot at 10 Mile and Greenfield in Southfield after he had been missing for four days. The body of Jill Robinson, 12, of Royal Oak, missing for three days, was found several feet from I-75 north of Big Beaver. Missing the longest, 18 days, was Kristine Mihelich, 10. Her body was found by a mailman in a ditch on Bruce Lane near 13 Mile and Telegraph in Franklin Village.

All the victims were found wearing the clothes they were last seen in. Their clothing was spotless. All had been suffocated. Kristine Mihelich was smothered and then shot in the face when, police think, the killer panicked, thinking she was still alive. when he still DID this come from?

The rash of killings paralyzed the community and became national news.

For months, Metro Detroit children were rarely allowed to play outside unsupervised. Parents religiously escorted children to the bus stop. Anyone and everyone was suspect: from the clergy to neighbors to baby sitters.

At its peak, in the spring of 1977, the Oakland County Child Killer Task Force employed 200 detectives from 50 communities in the tri-counties. Back then, it was the most extensive murder investigation in U.S. history. Rewards totaling $200,000 for information leading to the killer's apprehension had been raised.

By December 1978, the task force had disbanded.

After close to 5,000 interviews, 99,000 names and nearly 18,000 tips, no one had been arrested. In later years, investigators fielded sporadic tips. In 1999, the body of a former Warren man, David Norberg of Wyoming, was exhumed after a cross found among his possessions was thought to belong to Kristine Mihelich.

But his DNA failed to match the genetic material in a hair found on one of the suffocated children.

*SO DID BUSBY
D GREENE*

In September 2004, Timmy's mother died.

In 2005, Michigan State Police Detective Sergeant Garry Gray announced they were going to reanalyze evidence and leads in the case, using more advanced computer databases and forensic techniques.

The effort did uncover decades-old sex-crime cases, but they were not connected to the killings in Oakland County.

A chance occurrence

The case took an unexpected twist in July 2006, when Chris King got a call from a childhood friend whom he hadn't seen in more than 30 years. AUG 2007 COPY GOT A CALL FROM KING'S

Patrick Coffey, now 49, of San Francisco had been a neighbor and playmate of the King boys.

Now a polygraph examiner, Coffey says when Tim went missing it profoundly affected his life. "Much of the reason that I went into this profession was because of what happened to Tim," he said.

That summer, Coffey gave a presentation to the board of directors of the American Polygraph Association yearly training conference in Las Vegas. Larry Wasser, a former APA vice president and former president of the Michigan Association of Polygraph Examiners, asked if Coffey would be interested in giving the same presentation in Detroit. Coffey replied that he grew up in Birmingham and said his career ambition was borne out of the tragedy of a neighbor. "Maybe you have heard of the case: the Timmy King case?" he inquired of Wasser.

He said Wasser's jaw dropped. Then he said: " Well, I guess I can tell you this now because the attorney who represented the guy is dead. And the guy who did it is dead. I tested the guy who killed your neighbor boy." Coffey says Wasser told him it was a private polygraph in a case unrelated to the Oakland County child killings.

Coffey says he was shocked by the revelation.

July 2006 - Aug 2007

Michigan law makes it a misdemeanor- Please see Timmy, Page 7A

"IT' S ALMOST INCONCEIVABLE TO THINK SOMEBODY FROM THE VILLAGE COULD DO THIS. BUT WHAT' S REALLY HEARTBREAKING IS THAT BUSCH WAS ARRESTED, CHARGED AND SHOULD HAVE BEEN IN JAIL MANY TIMES OVER."

or for polygraph examiners to divulge any information learned as a result of their duties, unless compelled by law. Later that night, Coffey was able to track down Chris King, who was on a business trip. Six months later, Thanksgiving week 2007, responding to an investigative subpoena filed by Wayne County Prosecutor Rob Moran, Coffey took the stand and Wasser was ordered by the court to produce the name of the suspected killer.

In the courtroom, Coffey says he remembers meeting Gray, the State Police sergeant who had announced plans to revisit the case in 2005. After shaking hands, Coffey says Gray remarked to him, "You know, we had a state task force on this for 30 some years and I can't believe a neighbor boy solved it." Gray refused to comment for this story.

Reached by phone in his Southfield office, Larry Wasser denied having any involvement in the case. "Pat Coffey's information is totally bogus," he said.

"I never tested anybody that was involved in the Oakland County child killings."

Coffey says he was not surprised by Wasser's denial. "I know he regrets our conversation," Coffey says.

In retrospect, Coffey adds: "When you think about the odds of this happening, it's stunning. The Chris Busch lead would have died with Larry Wasser."

North Fox Island porn ring

According to his death certificate, Busch, 27, died from a self-inflicted gunshot to the head on Nov. 20, 1978.

He was employed as a food service manager at Franklin Club Apartments. It is believed that Busch was sent away to a boarding school in Switzerland. As a high-ranking GM executive, Busch's father, accompanied by his wife, traveled extensively throughout Europe for long periods. who told you that Former neighbors confirm the parents were rarely at the home on Morningview. through H.D.

In a series of articles published by the Traverse City Record-Eagle in February and March 1977, Busch was linked to a child pornography ring in Leelanau County's North Fox Island near Traverse City.

On Fox Island, the so-called Brother Paul's Children's Mission was a front for an underground pornography network where children were coerced into sexual acts and then photographed for use in porn magazines. After conducting a four-month investigation, the Record-Eagle broke the story of the porn ring. One of the stories states: "Police confiscated eight rolls of film from Christopher Busch, 25, of Birmingham." Diagoner

Busch also was arrested and charged on multiple charges of criminal sexual conduct in late February 1977 in Flint. Police alleged as many as 30 prepubescent boys from Flint were forced to commit sex acts with men, with each other and before cameras.

While in Flint, then-Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson sent investigators to interview Busch and an alleged accomplice, suggesting that some of the victimized boys had been procured in Oakland County. The accomplice, Gregory Green, 26, was charged with Busch. Previously, Green had served time in Orange County, Calif., for a sex offense involving a boy and was subsequently released to a psychiatric hospital. copy copy copy

The men were given lie detector tests and Oakland County investigators concluded Busch and Green were "not suspects in the Stebbins case."

While Green was held in the Genesee County jail in lieu of $75,000 bond, Busch went free on $1,000 cash bond.

Records on the outcome of the case were not available. Three weeks after Busch walked, Timmy King was abducted.

Being told the truth

Two years ago, the King family filed a Freedom of Information Act request with the Bloomfield Township Police for a copy of the police report of Chris Busch's suicide. They were told the file had been destroyed.

But Jack Kalbfleish, a former Birmingham police detective assigned to the task force during the child killings, says he remembers when the suicide report came into his office.

"I was working with field officers at the time, and I remembered a suicide that came in the area of Maple and Lahser," Kalbfleish said. "The significant detail found at the scene was a drawing of a kid that looked very much like Mark Stebbins."

The Kings fault the police for missing another opportunity to investigate Busch.

On Oct. 30 last year, law enforcement officials in Oakland County executed a search warrant for the former Busch residence on Morningview Terrace Drive. The heating and cooling ducts in the forced air system were vacuumed in an effort to dislodge possible evidence such as hairs or fibers.

"We've had this name since the fall of '07," says Chris King. "They didn't even start to gather evidence until a year later: the fall of '08. And now they won't tell us what tests are done, what tests are not done or when those tests might be done. That's all we've asked for. We just want the truth to come out."

Finding Timmy's killer: Family seeks answers 32 years after son's death

King family believes they know who killed 11-year-old in 1977, but police are slow to act

For 32 years, Timmy King's family has been waiting for the truth. Who abducted, molested and murdered their 11-year-old son and three other children during a 13-month reign of terror that besieged Oakland County between February 1976 and March 1977?

Timmy King was the last victim of the infamous Oakland County Child Killer. He was abducted and held for six days before his body was found on the side of a road, his orange skateboard tossed nearby like an afterthought.

No one has ever been charged with the killings, although numerous suspects have been investigated.

Now the King family believes they know who the killer is: A suspected Bloomfield Township pedophile who police had questioned three weeks before their boy's murder. But they are frustrated that the task force empowered to probe the cold case is sitting on what they say is information that could close the case once and for all.

"We want to know why we are being stonewalled," says Barry King, the victim's 78-year-old father. Timmy's mother, Marion, died in 2004.

The Kings say their repeated requests to the Michigan State Police for information on recent developments in the case have gone unanswered. Previously scheduled meetings have been postponed twice, although another meeting with some task force members has been scheduled for Tuesday.

"We want some justice for the victims. We've been told evidence is apparently lost; tests were supposedly conducted, but there have been no results for over a year. We never get a straight story," says Timmy's brother Chris King, 48, of Huntington Woods.

The King family believes that movement on the case has been hampered by disputes among law enforcement agencies involved in the task force investigation. Specifically, they believe how to proceed has created a schism between the Michigan State Police and the other agencies: the Livonia Police Department and the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office.

"There has been a lot of frustration felt by the Kings over the past couple of weeks," said State Police Capt. Harold Love, second district commander in charge of Southeast Michigan, which oversees the task force. Love said meetings with the Kings had to be rescheduled due to some "issues" within the task force.

"I don't blame them at all. We had some issues within the task force as far as where information came from and what information was out there and things people were saying and we needed to get the task force all
